All Fired Up

JAMES CALVERT/The Kentucky Standard

Bonnie Spalding, Bardstown, uses an ABC fire extinguisher to put out a controlled fire during a demonstration in the parking lot outside Council Chambers Monday. Bardstown-Nelson County Fire Department Sgt. Paul Vance instructed B.A.N.D. members and others how to effectively use an extinguisher. Vance is pictured supervising the demonstration.

Bardstown Police Chief Rick McCubbin said there were some crime problems in the Ashberry neighborhood in North Bardstown and he was hearing complaints from neighbors about criminal activity in that neighborhood. After hearing residents' complaints, McCubbin said his department stepped up efforts to crack down on crime in the neighborhood, he told

B.A.N.D. members at a meeting Monday.

"We have been hearing better things from residents," McCubbin said.

McCubbin said he would like to create an advisory council, which could be a committee, or sub-committee with B.A.N.D. members to get citizens more involved with reporting crime in their neighborhoods.

"I would like folks in the community to get involved with me," McCubbin said. "I'm looking for feedback from folks."

Members of Bardstown's Active Neighborhood Delegation (B.A.N.D.) learned about recently created police beats and got a hands-on lesson about how to use a fire extinguisher at a meeting Monday.

B.A.N.D.'s goal is to serve as a vehicle for neighborhoods and their residents to take a leading role in improving the quality of life in their community, according to the group's website.

A new police beat patrol that started Jan. 1. in Bardstown has been working, McCubbin told (B.A.N.D.) members at the meeting.

McCubbin said the expansion of the boundaries of the Bardstown city limits due to recent annexations was one of the reasons for creating patrol beats, in which officers would be assigned to patrol designated parts of the city. The city is divided into three areas, or

Drunk driver who struck motorcyclist gets 15 years

STAFF REPORT

A Bardstown woman has been sentenced to 15 years in prison for striking a motorcyclist while driving intoxicated.

Jennifer Marie Reed, 35, pleaded guilty to causing an accident that inflicted serious head injuries on Terrance "T.C." Drake, 24, Bardstown, in addition to breaking his jaw and knocking out several teeth.

Reed was sentenced last week to 10 years in prison for second-degree assault, five years in prison for first-degree wanton endangerment, 30 days in jail for operating a motor vehicle under the influence, and 90 days in jail for failure to notify address change to the Department of Transportation. The first two charges were to be served consecutively, with the rest to be served concurrently for a total of 15 years. She will be eligible for parole consideration after three years, according to Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Chip McKay.

Judge Charles Simms denied Reed's motion for probation on the grounds it would depreciate the seriousness of the crime.

Drake, a former Nelson County High School and University of Kentucky football player, is today still working toward recovery from the extensive injuries he suffered May 29, 2011, according to his mother, Lysa Drake. He was not wearing a motorcycle helmet when the accident occurred.

"T.C.'s actually doing great. He's got several surgeries ahead of him yet, but the frontal brain injury he suffered — that's healing pretty good," Drake said. "He's back to work. It's just amazing how far he's come."

Humane Society will operate animal kennel

emccoy@kystandard.com

After nearly three months of consideration and debate, Nelson Fiscal Court Tuesday approved a proposal to allow the Humane Society of Nelson County to manage daily operations at the Nelson County Animal Shelter, or kennel.

Under the proposed plan, the county will compensate the Humane Society for its services in the amount of $50,600 annually — funds that already go toward the operation of the kennel. The Humane Society suggests the plan will save the county about $14,800 annually in benefits paid for Brenda Phillips' position as shelter director — a position that will be eliminated — and saved costs in supplies.

Eleven days before Tuesday's meeting of Fiscal Court, the animal control committee met to express details of the plan. District 1 Magistrate Keith Metcalfe was skeptical at the time that the plan would save as much money as it stated, because the Humane Society had requested to keep licensing and reclaim fees, which previously went to the county.

Under the final contract, those fees along with violation fees will continue to funnel to the county. They amounted to a combined $8,515 in fiscal year 2010-2011, according to Metcalfe.

At Tuesday's meeting, Metcalfe was concerned that a contract between the county and Humane Society didn't explicitly state the agreement will come up for review before the court after one year. The contract is set to be automatically renewed annually, with 90 days notice required for its termination at any time.

Jury recommends death for St. Clair

LANDMARK NEWS SERVICE

ELIZABETHTOWN — Convicted murderer Michael Dale St. Clair will be sentenced next month for his most recent murder conviction Friday in Hardin County.

A Hardin County jury unanimously found St. Clair guilty of the execution style killing of Frank Brady from a Sonora truck stop.

St. Clair was convicted Friday on capital kidnapping and other charges in connection with the 1991 abduction and murder of Brady following a three-week trial and less than two hours of deliberations.

The Hardin Circuit Court jury was empanelled following a reversal by the Kentucky Supreme Court in 2010 on an evidentiary ruling.

According to a news release from Attorney General Jack Conway's office, St. Clair will be sentenced Feb. 1.

During the trial, jurors heard testimony detailing how St. Clair and an accomplice, both escapees from an Oklahoma jail, embarked on a deadly multi-state crime spree.

On Oct. 6, 1991, St. Clair and his accomplice abducted Brady, a distillery worker from Nelson County, at a Hardin County rest stop. The pair took Brady to an isolated, wooded area in Bullitt County where St. Clair handcuffed his victim and then shot him multiple times.

Jurors also heard testimony about four additional murders committed by St. Clair prior to his escape from jail.

The jury also convicted St. Clair on charges of criminal attempt to murder a Kentucky State Police trooper, facilitation to arson second degree and two counts of receiving stolen property over $500.

St. Clair is on death row at the Kentucky State Penitentiary in Eddyville after being sentenced to death in November of 2011 following a conviction in Bullitt Circuit Court in the slaying of Brady.

Beautiful Dreamer Ball has '80s theme

jcalvert@kystandard.com

The era of Reaganomics, New Kids On the Block and the Cold War is the theme of this year's black tie fundraiser for the Stephen Foster Drama Association. "I love the '80s" is the theme of the annual Beautiful Dreamer Ball Feb. 11 at Kreso's restaurant in Bardstown.

This is the 13th year for the Beautiful Dreamer Ball, which is the annual fundraiser for the Stephen Foster Drama Association and every year there is a new theme based on an era of pop-culture. This year tables will be decorated with Rubick's cubes, movie posters and '80s-movie-themed memorabilia.

All proceeds go toward the drama association's general operating fund. Last year's Beautiful Dreamer Ball generated about $12,000 for the Drama Association, according to Johnny Warren, managing artistic director.

"It is an opportunity for us to do something totally different and raise money in an entertaining way," Warren said. "The ball is a great way to spend the night out and support the Stephen Foster Drama Association in a fun and unique way."

Bueller, an '80s tribute band from Nashville, will perform and the dance floor will be open. The band gets its name from the 1986 film "Ferris Bueller's Day Off."

Cocktail hour starts at 6:30 p.m., and dinner starts at 7:30 p.m.

There will be a big-screen trivia game in which audience members will answer questions about clips from '80's movies that will be shown on a big screen.

Throughout the evening there will be a silent auction for theater, concert and attraction tickets, weekend getaways, sports memorabilia, casino packages, golf outings, art, clothing, jewelry, family fun outings and more.

Guests will have their photos taken at the door and they will be given the photo in a commemorative frame before they leave.

Seating is limited and the deadline to reserve a spot is Feb. 8.

Tickets are $100 per person, $200 per couple and $800 for a table of eight. Cocktails and dinner are included in the price. To make a reservation, call the Stephen Foster Drama Association at 348-5971.

Witness pursues woman after alleged hit-and-run

emccoy@kystandard.com

A Chaplin woman allegedly fled the scene of a Bloomfield Road accident, pursued by a witness, but eventually turned herself in Friday morning.

Tonya Lampkin, 33, was arrested for leaving the scene of an accident, no insurance and improper registration.

"It was a noninjury accident at Bloomfield Road and Bloomfield Pike. What happened was she didn't have insurance and she thought she was going to get arrested," Bardstown Police Officer Tom Blair said.

A witness reportedly told police that about 10:55 a.m. Friday, Lampkin's 1996 Chevy Cavalier pulled out of Old Bloomfield Pike and clipped a 2008 Lexus driven by Mona Stone, 58, Bardstown.

When Lampkin allegedly drove away, Blair said, witness Thomas Reddick, 57, Bardstown, pursued her to Cottage Grove subdivision behind BJ's restaurant and reported her license tag number to police.

The tag had been taken off a jeep that also belonged to Lampkin, Blair said.

As Blair was taking the report near BJ's, within sight of only two exits from the area, other officers surveyed the subdivision. Officer Bill Buckman encountered Lampkin's passenger, Carolyn Richardson, 31, Taylorsville, walking on Camptown Road, Blair said. It appeared Lampkin had left her car and gone into the woods behind the subdivision, near Save-A-Lot, he said.

"She actually ran into the woods toward (KY) 245," Blair said.

Richardson was reportedly able to call Lampkin and convince her to return to Camptown Road and turn herself in, according to Blair.

No one was injured in the accident.

Did You Know?

Did you know that pneumococcal disease is the leading cause of vaccine-preventable illness and death in the United States?

Pneumococcal disease can cause serious infections of the lungs (pneumonia), the blood (bacteremia), and the brain (meningitis). Anyone can get pneumococcal disease but some people are more at risk. People who are at the greatest risk for developing pneumococcal disease are children of young age, those older than 65 years, people with certain medical conditions such as diabetes and heart disease, and those who have a weakened immune system such as those undergoing chemotherapy or radiation for the treatment of cancer. Pneumococcal disease is treatable with medications but some strains of the disease have become resistant to medications. So prevention of the disease is best with vaccination.

At Crume Drug Store, we offer many vaccinations, including the vaccine against pneumococcal disease. Come in and consult with one of our pharmacists to see what vaccinations you would benefit from.

Anatok, a 164-year-old mansion behind Bethlehem High School, is at the center of the debate.

Let's make the plan to save Anatok a reality

Bethlehem High School is doing the right thing by giving the “Save Anatok” group some time to come up with a workable plan to rescue the pre-Civil War mansion in the downtown area from the wrecking ball.

As long as the two sides are talking there is hope that funds can be found to stabilize and then renovate the graceful home. Make no mistake though, time is starting to run.short . The longer the building sits empty the more potential vandalism and just plain deterioration will take place.

Preservationists call it “demolition by neglect” and that was the fate that seemed destined for the structure just a few months ago.

But reason prevailed and the pro-preservation committee was given a chance to make its case and for the time being there is hope that we will not lose another of our significant buildings simply because it is inconvenient to try to save it.

Part of the emerging business plan calls for leasing the building from the Louisville Archdiocese. Although a potential bump in the road to preservation, there is a history of such a lease proving to be successful. Spalding Hall is probably the best example. The renovation of venerable Flaget Hall and its use as office and meeting space is another good example of finding ways to accomplish goals even when the prospects appear dim.

Like it or not, sometimes we find we have become stewards of our surroundings. If we do not want to become the generation who was unable to save our architectural jewels Bardstown will be doomed to the bland, homogenized sameness that plagues our vision from north to south and east to west devoid of any hint of our past and the dreams of the residents of our community who proceeded us.

Thank you Bethlehem.

Let's make the plan to save Anatok work.

OUR VIEWS

When the world is heavy, think fluff

There are bills making rounds on Capitol Hill that threaten the survival of American Democracy, such as the Stop Online Piracy Act (SOPA), the Protect IP Act (PIPA) and the recently signed the National Defense Act, which allows the indefinite detention of Americans suspected of being affiliated with terrorist activities. Kentucky Sen. Rand Paul was turned away on Monday from boarding his flight after refusing to be searched by Transportation Security officials but it won't be the first time or the last time one has claimed the TSA is out of line.

But there are other things that we, as Americans, share that are perhaps more filling, but lighter and fluffier than the heavy issues of the day, such as... Twinkies.

Yes, Twinkies—the soft, angel food-esque, cream-filled snacks that line the shelves of junk food aisles in supermarkets and gas stations across America that are a delightfully satisfying American icon.

But even the company that makes Twinkies — Hostess Brands — filed for chapter 11 bankruptcy protection this month.

The Twinkie was invented in 1930 by James Alexander Dewar, who was a baker for the Continental Baking Company, which was also responsible for creating another American icon — Wonderbread. Hostess Brands, which still produces Twinkies, later acquired the Continental Baking Company.

The original Twinkie consisted of an angel food sponge cake, but instead of a vanilla cream center, it had a banana cream filling. During World War II, bananas were rationed and Hostess started making Twinkies with vanilla cream. The vanilla cream filling became popular among Americans and Hostess discontinued Twinkies with banana filling.

In 2007, Hostess started making banana cream-filled Twinkies again and they are still available today.

The Twinkie has become a part of the American lexicon often, for infamous reasons. The “Twinkie Defense” was the term given to the legal defense used by Dan White, who assassinated San Francisco city supervisor Harvey Milk and Mayor George Moscone in 1978.

According to his lawyer, White had subsisted on a diet of junk food, including Twinkies that caused him to suffer from deep depression, which made him murderous. White's defense may have worked. He was convicted of involuntary manslaughter, a lesser charge than murder in the first degree.

There are also several urban legends surrounding Twinkies. It has been rumored the Twinkie has an indefinite shelf life, but a Hostess Brand executive said they have a shelf life of about 25 days.

It has also been said a Twinkie can survive a nuclear blast relatively unscathed, but there is no real research to back up this claim. It is theorized the heat from the blast would melt the Twinkie. In other words, it's not an experiment one should try at home.

It's all just a matter of taste

My doctor says I need to be more careful about what I eat and be more health conscious. I don't have a problem with that since I like healthy foods anyway. I love broccoli, especially covered with cheese. Salads are good, too, with lots of creamy dressing mixed in. Fruits, such as apples, peaches, and cherries are nice, too, primarily when they are surrounded by a pie. Oatmeal is good for breakfast, filled with butter and whole milk.

Get the picture? If it tastes good, spit it out. I don't have a medical degree but that pretty much sums up a healthy diet to combat the many illnesses and diseases going around and will keep us living a very long life. Yet, it may not be as bad as it sounds.

So that brings up the theme of today's column. Is it better to live a long life of sacrifice and conservatism, or enjoy each day to the fullest and let tomorrow take care of itself? Both lifestyles have their advantages and if you happen to be one of the lucky ones who live a full life every day and reach a ripe old age before checking out, then you couldn't ask for more. Yet for most of us, the choices we make today will affect how we live tomorrow.

Diabetes, heart disease, high blood pressure are just a few concerns with which most of us live on a daily basis. It may be a result of lack of proper exercise, a diet leaning heavily toward junk food and sweets, or it may just be in our DNA. Other than the last one on the list, we have it in our power to make a choice. Looking in a mirror we can easily see that being overweight is not a good choice. Smoking is not a good choice, drinking alcohol to excess or even going back for seconds or thirds at dinner are not good choices. Yet we make these choices again and again, promising that later on we will make up for it and start working out and losing a few pounds. Lack of willpower, apathy, or simply the logic that we will live forever are compounding reasons to simply make the easy choice and do nothing.

Are we too lazy to take care of ourselves? Are we uneducated about what we can do to live a healthier life or longer life? Nope. We just don't take life seriously until it is either too late or the doctor gives us no other choice. So, if we are not going to take care of ourselves, who will? Critics of government say that our elected leaders need to keep their noses out of our businesses and our lives. But again, who is going to watch over us if they don't do it? Does it matter? How about our kids? Who decides school menus or keep kids away from secondhand smoke? Should they exercise more at school? Is it up to the schools or parents to make these choices?

With Paula Deen now acknowledging being a diabetic, she and I have something in common: Going to a party and finding very few healthy options, going to a restaurant and looking for low carb items on the menu, or simply enjoying eating without sacrificing taste.

Lots of questions today. Very few answers. The solutions are up to each of us, how we act, what we do and who we elect to public office. Whether we accept it or not, all of us are in the driver's seat when it comes to much of our own lifestyle and that of our children. Diet may be a four letter word all of us hate, but dead is a much worse one.

Now if you will excuse me, there is a cheesecake waiting for me on the sofa in front of the TV with my name on it.

Senate district lines change

Appreciation for Nelson County remains

FRANKFORT — Every decade in our country a census of the population is taken. This information is used for many different things, including the re-drawing of state Senate district lines.

Here in Kentucky, we're Constitutionally mandated to reapportion state legislative, congressional, and judicial districts after the Census. Through the years, our districts change. People move in and out. Populations shift. To comply with the Supreme Court principle of "one person, one vote," district lines are redrawn to account for these changes.

This was the year for new district lines to be determined in Kentucky. The process has been completed for the state Senate. The new districts provide everyone in the state with equal representation. They're geographically cohesive. On paper, those lines were relatively easy to draw.

JIMMY HIGDON
»» STATE SENATOR
14th District

In practice, enacting those new boundaries is a bit more complicated. State lawmakers on both sides of the aisle, from both ends of the Capitol, have mixed feelings. For us, this is personal. We develop meaningful relationships with our folks back home. Those relationships are difficult to give up.

Redistricting was bitter-sweet for me. The lines of Senate District 14 were not exempt to change. The lines of my district have shifted a bit to the southeast and Nelson County has been taken out of my district. I have developed many lasting friendships in Nelson County and will forever be grateful for the opportunity I've had to serve the citizens there. I look forward to returning there as a friend who has much appreciation for the area even if I will no longer officially be your state senator.

And while a black district line now separates Nelson and my home county of Marion, I want you to know it's just as easy to reach me now as it ever was. I will continue to work on the road plan and other significant legislation. You can be sure I won't forget Nelson County.

Thank you for the support and hospitality you have given me as your senator. Please don't hesitate to call on me with anything with which I can help you. You can call the Legislative Message Line at 800-372-7181, or reach me at home at 270-692-6945.

Expanded gambling debate lingers on

To the editor:
The debate over expanded gambling looms large on Frankfort's horizon, the governor having promised to make gambling expansion a priority of his administration. A recent article in this paper discussed the funding for education that is provided by our state lottery, and seems to portray the benefits of gambling as a revenue-maker for state government. But how much is gambling—specifically, the lottery — really costing Kentucky?

The money generated by lottery sales — it wasn't plucked from the lottery tree. Was this money garnered only from wealthy individuals, who have the means to purchase lottery tickets? Doubtful — the lottery appeals most to those who are least likely to be able to afford such a losing proposition. Lottery money comes directly from the pockets of Kentucky families. The money put into lottery tickets is money that will not be spent on Susie's braces or a new refrigerator or healthcare or other household necessities.

Gambling is a vice — only when the government stands to gain would any reasonable lawmaker consider gambling as a viable revenue stream. Frankfort should be doing everything within its power to strengthen families and individuals, and encourage economy, budgeting, and responsibility.

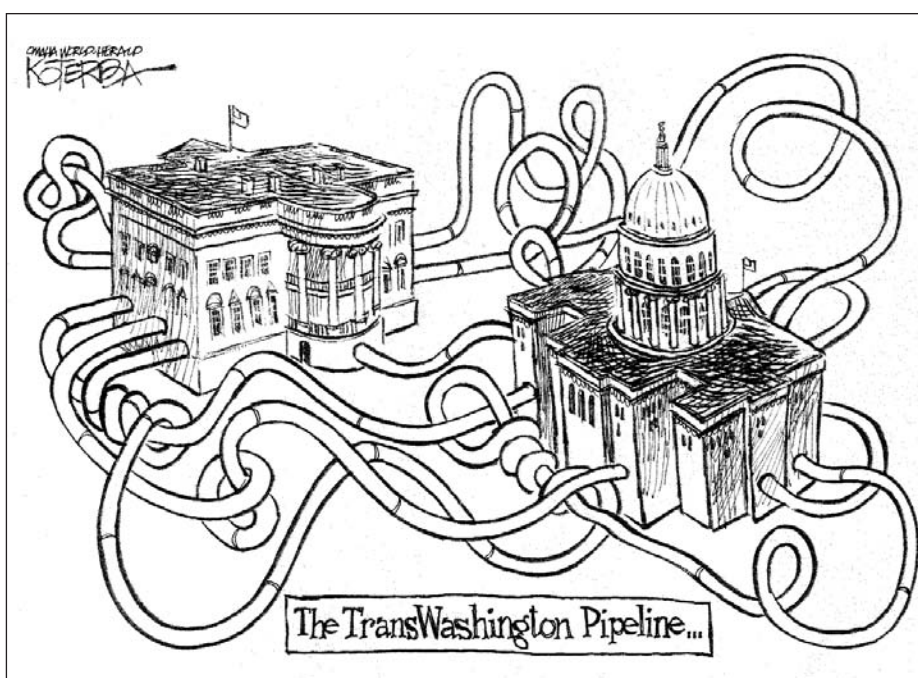

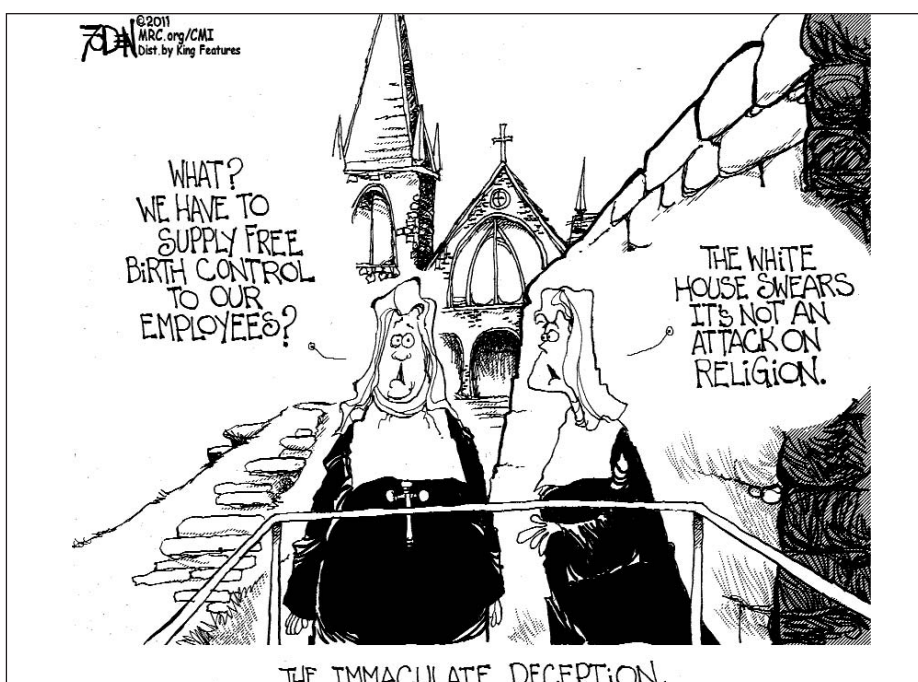

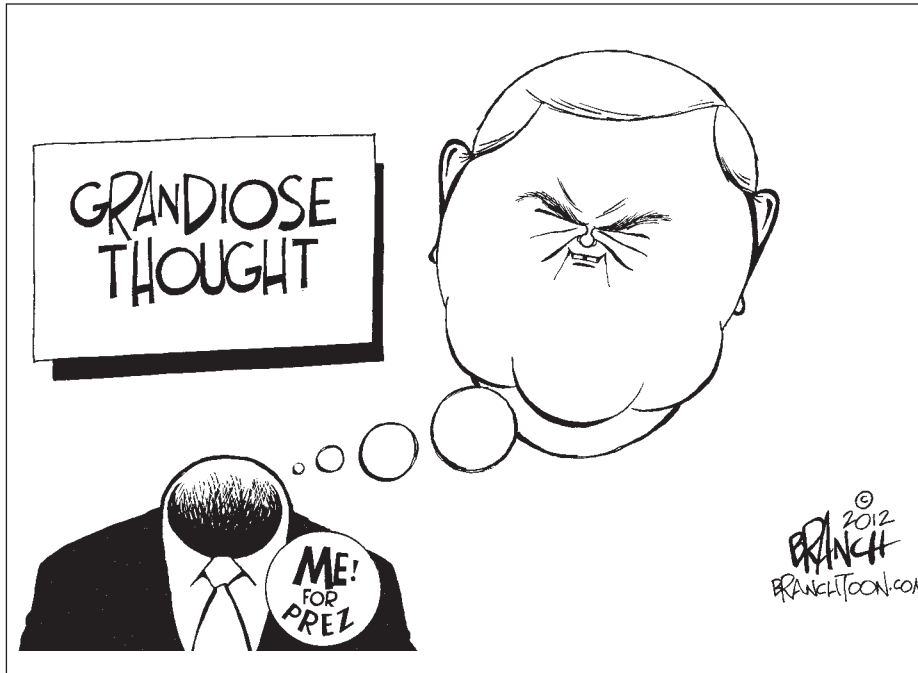

When the lottery was instituted under the Wallace Wilkinson administration, Kentuckians were enthusiastically promised that our taxes would not be increased because the lottery would cover all our rising state education expenditures. What a lie.

But — "play responsibly; remember it's just a game." Indeed it is — a scheme wherein government wins when citizens lose. "Somebody's gotta win — it might as well be you!" Actually, a whole lot of somebodies have to lose, not win. Our state government is betting on the greed and ignorance of our citizens. What a bad example to our young people, in particular. Gambling reinforces the "something for nothing" notion, which has unfortunately proved to be highly addictive for many people in our culture.

If you have money to throw away on the lottery, then you ought to spend it better. Find a family in need, someone struggling to pay for healthcare or groceries, or a charity that is making a difference. Don't lose your money to a vice, a stupid tax if ever there were one.

Career day at Bethlehem High

More than 20 career professionals were at Bethlehem High School on Wednesday, Oct. 19, to talk with students about their chosen career path. Students were able to attend four different sessions to learn more about the education required, the skills needed and the benefits of a specific career or vocation.

Those presenting included a surgeon, attorney, chef, engineer, occupational therapist, physical therapist, priest, business owner, teacher, athletic trainer, nurse, and social worker. Students were able to ask specific questions regarding the chosen field and to learn what they need to be doing now, in high school, to prepare for his or her future.

Chris Mudd, Certified Athletic Trainer with the Philadelphia Phillies, speaks to a Bethlehem class.

Freshman J. T. Mattingly examines an exact replica of the KySat-1 satellite Twyman Clements' group at the University of Kentucky built and launched as part of ELaNa I which is a program that launches student built satellites.

Dog Daze of School

Clifford, the Big Red Dog, an original creation of Norman Bridwell, greeted students and faculty of Bluegrass Christian Academy at the door of the school to help kick off the annual Book Fair. Clifford came to help the small, private school launch its annual Scholastic Book Fair. The weeklong event allows teachers to bring each class in daily to peruse the book choices and then fill out a wish list which each child then in turn gives to his or her parent. Then the families come in to purchase their child's book selections. "Another event to keep the momentum going at the Book Fair is our Dress as Your Favorite Book Character Day," commented Principal Pat Kays. "Book Character Day is something that our children are always excited about. They choose their character wisely, and keep it a secret to everyone and then show up in some amazing costume. Most do not have to explain who they are." "However, many will carry a copy of their 'character's' book with them, ever so ready to explain to anyone who doesn't readily recognize who they are." TOP — Third grader Mackinzi Milburn gives Clifford a big BCA welcome. ABOVE — BCA students dressed as their favorite book character talk to Clifford about reading.

‘Extremely Loud and Incredibly Close’

Son on a quest finds something more cherished

Thomas Horn’s naturalistic performance as Oskar Schell is so honest, expressive, and natural that it almost overcomes any self-consciousness we feel about this young pre-teen’s brittleness in the character. The movie rests on that performance and makes it work for us.

Oskar (Thomas Horn) is convinced that his father (Tom Hanks), who died in the 9/11 attacks on the World Trade Center, has left a final message for him hidden somewhere in the city. Feeling disconnected from his grieving mother (Sandra Bullock) and driven by a relentlessly active mind that refuses to believe in things that can’t be observed, Oskar begins searching New York City for the lock that fits a mysterious key he found in his father’s closet. His journey through the five boroughs takes him beyond his own loss to a greater understanding of the observable world around him.

Oskar’s grandmother (Zoe Caldwell) who lives in the next apartment building is his raft in his unsettled life. He suffers from intense curiosity with a very intelligent mind which allows him to do extraordinary tasks, like finding the person who can tell him about the key. The mute, mysterious Renter (Max von Sydow) who may have an undeclared connection to Oskar’s family becomes a surrogate, replacing Thomas (Hanks), thereby bringing some focus back to Oskar’s life.

St. Mary's, Catholic Health Initiatives to merge; U of L out of the picture

bbowman@lcn.com

A visit to the doctor can be time consuming enough. Going to another doctor, hospital or emergency room can be life threatening if they don't have accurate medical records. The recent merger between Jewish Hospital and St. Mary's HealthCare and St. Joseph Health System, of which Flaget Memorial Hospital is a part, could make the process more efficient and safer for patients in Kentucky. KentuckyOne Health is the new health system created from the merger of the two organizations and will be the largest health system in Kentucky. Catholic Health Initiatives possessed 25 percent equity in Jewish Hospital and St. Mary's HealthCare before the merger. Flaget Memorial Hospital and St. Joseph Health System are part of the Catholic Health Initiatives blanket that has 83 percent equity in the merger. KentuckyOne Health is a statewide collaborative that will address existing and new challenges facing the medical industry, according to Jeff Murphy regional director of marketing, communications and public relations at St. Joseph Health System. "We will be exploring for greater efficiencies," Murphy said. "Last week, Flaget Memorial needed a specialist on call and it was covered by someone at Jewish." Flaget will continue to benefit as a member of Catholic Health Initiatives, which will invest $320 million into a system that comprises 2,492 active physicians, 3,890 nurses and employs 13,609 workers as of 2010. All facilities under the KentuckyOne Health will eventually share access to a database mutually beneficial for medical staff and its patients. The new system will provide an integrated electronic health record system that will be accessible in the future to patients on a secure website. "We will set up an electronic record with accurate patient information," Murphy said. "Whether patients are in Mount Sterling, Flaget, or Jewish Hospital they will receive care with less risk of error. We have a goal of zero errors and we want to give patients more control over their medical history." KentuckyOne Health's goal is to provide patients in rural areas services usually only available in larger markets. The system includes hospitals, clinics, home health agencies, and primary care centers in 80 locations. Both systems have expertise in cardiology. Both share access to the da Vinci robot used in surgical procedures with minimal intrusion for prostate, gynecological and heart surgeries. Despite the merger, both organizations will retain their own culture. "One important thing for people to know is that Flaget will operate as it always has," Murphy said. "Both organizations will remain true to their culture, heritage and mission."

Guthrie to host 21 Listening Sessions in January

BOWLING GREEN, KY — Congressman Brett Guthrie (KY-02) will host Listening Sessions in each of the 21 counties in the Second District during January 2012. The Nelson County Session will be 11:30 a.m. EST Jan. 26, in the Nelson County Fiscal Courtroom, 1 Court Square, Bardstown. During the listening sessions, individuals will be able to ask questions or offer ideas on what Congress should be doing. A constituent services representative will also be available to assist with any specific questions individuals may have about a federal government agency or service.

Renter begin an organized search to find the unknown Mr./Mrs./Miss Black, Oskar's unwavering optimism and courage begin to falter. Abby Black (Viola Davis) makes the connection which seems to solve the mystery of the key, but there is more. As the pieces of the puzzle fall together, mother and son have their fights which become catharses to cement a familial bond. But will they live happily ever after? The most profound feeling at the end of "Extremely Loud, and Incredibly Close" is how all threads of this story have been brought together. All the disparate Blacks are brought back, and we see how they have influenced Oskar and how he has affected them. Think back to 9/11 and the jets flying toward the twin towers and you will understand the title of the film. This movie rests largely on the shoulders of young Thomas Horn. There are a few moments when he seems to be over-directed which make him a tad stiff, but we empathize and sympathize with him, even when he is bratty. Hanks' character is fleeting but effective. Sandra Bullock reserves her on-screen moments to make a profound impression at the end. That's when you may need the hankies. You will see that while Oskar was searching for the lock, he finds something more valuable — how to get on with his life after the death of his beloved father. Though just released nationally, this film will be in competition for 2011 Oscars. *Family Rating: PG-13 for emotional thematic material, some disturbing images, and language. Correctly rated. Residents evacuate after grease fire

jcalvert@kystandard.com

An unattended skillet caused a fire that damaged a home at 106 Aspen St. in Bardstown Monday.

The Bardstown-Nelson County Fire Department and EMS responded to the fire about 3:30 p.m.

Homeowner Patricia Pulliam said she was cooking pork chops in a skillet when she left them unattended for a moment while she briefly left to do laundry. When she got back to the kitchen, the skillet was on fire. Pulliam moved the skillet to the sink and tried using flour to extinguish the fire, but the fire continued to spread.

Pulliam, her daughter Whitney Pulliam, and her three small children were inside the home and got out safely and the smoke detectors in the home were working. Assistant Chief Robbie Blanford said.

JAMES CALVERT/The Kentucky Standard

Bardstown-Nelson County firefighters broke through a window to extinguish a grease fire at a residence on Aspen Street in Bardstown Monday. No one was injured in the incident.

Firefighters broke through a window of the home and used a fire hose to extinguish the blaze, Blanford said.

The blaze caused damage to the cabinets above the sink, according to Blanford. Minor grease fires can be prevented from getting out of control by smothering the fire with a tight-fitting lid or a cooking sheet, Blanford said.

"If you are going to be cooking with grease, always have something to put over the pan," Blanford said.

better," she said.

The family was satisfied with the sentence Reed received, she said.

"We agreed on the 15-year sentence. T.C. did, of course. You know, it's hard on both families. I feel for the mother of the lady because she seems real nice. But we're at a point — T.C. has forgiven the lady already. He'll never forget, but he has forgiven. He feels 15 years is hard enough," Drake said. "Both families lost out, really, when this happened."

According to police records, the accident occurred as Drake was driving his 2006 Suzuki motorcycle eastbound on U.S. 62, Bloomfield Road, about 9:19 p.m. May 29. Reed reportedly made a left-hand turn into Drake's path. He was unable to stop and the motorcycle struck the passenger side of Reed's 1999 Ford Taurus. Witnesses stated Drake was thrown 10-12 feet in the air.

When the Nelson County Sheriff's Department arrived on scene, officers reportedly found Drake's motorcycle lying on its side in the eastbound lane facing west, with Drake lying in the road some distance from his motorcycle. A police report states that Reed had a 0.188 blood-alcohol level, more than twice the legal limit.

The accident occurred near Fast Food Mart at 1151 Bloomfield Road and surveillance video from the business was collected for evidence, along with footage of Reed purchasing a six-pack of Bud Ice bottles from Stephen Foster Chevron at 7:14 p.m. the night of the accident, a police report states.

Drake lost six teeth and had to undergo bone grafts and reconstruction to his jaw and mouth. Some damaged nerves have begun to heal, Lysa Drake said.

"At one point he had 50 percent nerve damage in his face — the left side," she said. These accompanied three skull fractures on the same side, and the loss of his hearing in his left ear.

"We don't know if he'll regain that or not," Drake said of his hearing.

Her son's attitude and resilience have propelled him forward, she said.

"He's just young and determined and wanting to get out there and get himself beats, which at least one officer would patrol. While most cities have patrol beats, McCubbin said, this was a first for Bardstown.

The idea is to help officers familiarize themselves with the neighborhoods that they patrol, McCubbin explained.

"We will have one officer in each of these areas," McCubbin told B.A.N.D. members. "Cops will be looking for unusual things."

McCubbin presented a map of the new patrol beats to B.A.N.D. members, which consist of the "Adam beat," "Baker beat" and "Charlie beat."

The "Adam beat," includes neighborhoods northwest and northeast of the intersection of Third Street and KY 245, neighborhoods southeast of the intersection of KY 245 and North Third Street, and includes areas surrounding Flaget Memorial Hospital.

The "Baker" beat includes areas southwest of the intersection of KY 245 and Third Street, and includes areas surrounding downtown Bardstown and neighborhoods north of the Martha Layne Collins Blue Grass Parkway.

The Charlie beat consists of neighborhood east of downtown Bardstown and includes recently annexed areas between Bloomfield Road and the Martha Layne Collins Blue Grass Parkway.

Maps of the new patrol beats are available on the Bardstown Police Department's website, along with information about which officer is patrolling in a specific beat.

When asked how the officers would be assigned to the beats, McCubbin said the most senior officers in the department would be put on beats of their choice.

B.A.N.D. members also heard from a representative from the Bardstown-Nelson County Fire Department about fire safety at the meeting.

Bardstown City Council members Bobby Simpson, Roland Williams and Tommy Reed and five Bardstown residents got a lesson in fire prevention and safety from Sergeant Paul Vance, with the Bardstown-Nelson County Fire Department. They also got a hands-on lesson on how to properly use a fire extinguisher.

Vance set up fire under controlled conditions in the parking lot outside Council Chambers and directed residents to aim for the base of a fire with the extinguisher.

Vance told B.A.N.D. members to "PASS" or "pull, aim, squeeze and sweep," when using a fire extinguisher.

He described three types of fire extinguishers, for fighting different types of fires.

Water fire extinguishers are not as common as they used to be and should never be used to put out an electrical fire, or used on an electrical device that is plugged in due to the possibility of electrocution. Water extinguishers cool the fire, but do not smother the fire, Vance said.

Carbon Dioxide extinguishers smother the fire and are effective to extinguish wood, paper, cloth, plastic and trash fires. But they are not effective when extinguishing fires caused by grease or flammable liquids, Vance said.

Vance recommended an ABC, or dry chemical fire extinguisher, which is effective for putting out fires caused by trash, paper, wood, flammable liquids and electrical devices. Vance said the extinguishers could be purchased at A-Plus Fire and Safety in Cox's Creek or at Walmart.

"They are great for homes," Vance said.

One fire extinguisher for every 70 square feet is recommended in the home, Vance said, but added homeowners should get out of the house in case of a fire.

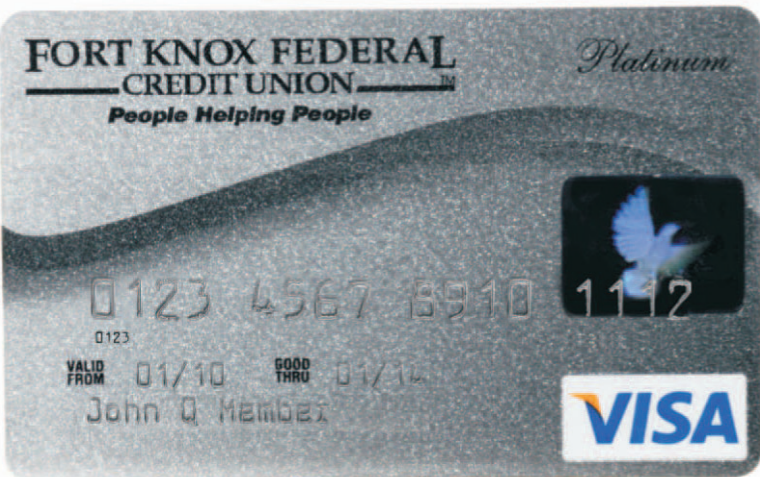

"My philosophy is get everyone out of the home," Vance said. "I try to tell people, if you are nervous about dealing with the fire, you will probably already be at a high level of anxiety and you should probably leave the house," Vance said.

B.A.N.D.'s next meeting is 7 p.m. July 23.

Banshees snap skid, blow out Spencer Co.

PETER W. ZUBATY/The Kentucky Standard

Bethlehem freshman Hannah Gribbins (15) emerged from a sea of arms with a second-half rebound Monday in the Banshees' 71-47 win over visiting Spencer County. It was Bethlehem's first win since Dec. 16.

Bardstown High School will have a limited number of presale tickets available for its appearance Thursday in the Touchstone Energy Boys' All A Classic state basketball tournament at Frankfort's Farnham Dudgeon Civic Center.

Some tickets went on sale Tuesday night during the Tiger boys' meeting with Male after press time for this edition. Others will be available during two sessions today at the Bardstown High School office, from 11:20 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. and from 3:30-4:30 p.m. Advance presale tickets are $8.

The Tigers (15-5), champs of the 5th Region, take on Lexington Christian (14-6) — which survived an overtime scare from Model in the 11th Region title game — at 11:30 a.m. Thursday.

The Bardstown-LCA game is preceded by West Carter (17-3) v. Webster County (13-7) at 8:30 a.m. and Heath (13-7) and defending champ Betsy Layne (16-2) at 10 a.m.

Should Bardstown top LCA, the Tigers would face the winner of the 1 p.m. Thursday matchup of Glasgow (14-4) v. McLean County (12-8) in Friday's quarterfinals (6:30 p.m.).

Other first-round games Thursday include:

Covington Holy Cross (18-2) v. Barbourville (18-2) 5 p.m.

Owen County (14-7) v. Buckhorn (16-3) 6:30 p.m.

Bishop Brossart (15-4) v. Collegiate (12-5) 8 p.m.

DeSales (9-10) v. Danville (7-9) 9:30 p.m.

The Kentucky Standard for more All A Classic coverage.

Girls' basketball Banshees snap skid; Tigers fall

Bethlehem picked up its second win of the season Monday, blasting visiting Spencer County 71-47 to break a losing streak that stretched back to mid-December.

Banshee senior Olivia Alm proved the biggest thorn in the Bears' side, producing a game-high 23 points and helping Bethlehem bust out to leads of 11-5 after the first quarter and 32-17 at halftime.

The Banshees (2-17) led by as many as 31 in the sec-

The truth about boat extended warranties

Often people have described a boat as a hole in the water in which to throw money — or something like that. And, there is considerable truth in the saying.

As I sit at the computer writing this column, the boat repair guy is due on Monday to work on my old 60-horse motor. There's always something to repair, to spend money on.

But, on the flip side, my boats have always given me lots of pleasure fishing the Ohio River, skiing, exploring river banks for a picnic spot, watching birds, or just enjoying the scenery at Kentucky Lake or Green River.

As spring approaches as do boat shows, so a release from the Boat Owners Association of the United States related to extended warranties seems worth passing along.

"Extended warranties," also known as service contracts, may not offer the full coverage you're hoping for. Knowing what they will and will not cover, however, will give a boat buyer the chance to make an educated purchase.

Here are some tips from the BoatUS Consumer Protection Bureau:

Naked truth No. 1: An extended "warranty" is not a warranty — An extended warranty (service contract) is not a warranty at all but rather an insurance policy that pays for repairs if the breakdown, failure or failed component is specified as covered by the policy. On the other hand, a new boat warranty covers much more and generally offers more protections to the boat buyer.

Naked truth No. 2: Don't let the name fool you — Service contracts with names like Mercury Product Protection, Volvo Penta Extended Protection Program, and Brunswick Product Protection are usually written by independent companies, not the manufacturer.

Naked truth No. 3: Not everything is covered — A service contract does not imply that the boat or engine manufacturer will go above and beyond if problems occur. It covers specific items only. On the other hand, a new boat warranty is a guarantee that the manufacturer will stand behind the product in a specific way or period of time. What does this mean to the boat buyer? A new boat warranty would replace a defective water pump, for example, and repair any damage that was a result of the failed pump overheating the engine. With a service contract, the pump is a commonly covered repair but the overheating damage is generally not.

Naked truth No. 4: The real cost of repairs could be higher — Service contracts could come with some out-of-pocket repair costs.

That's because while they may cover a certain broken engine part, the contract may not cover the costs to remove the engine to access the part. Also, service contracts generally have nominal deductibles.

Naked truth No. 5: The overlap issue — Service contracts sold by independent companies begin as soon as they receive your premium, but these contracts take a back seat to the new boat warranty. This means if your service contract is for five years and the new boat warranty is for two, you actually only get three years of service contract protection. The exceptions are the extended warranties sold by Mercury and Volvo that begin after the manufacturer's new boat warranty runs out.

Naked truth No. 6: Wait to buy — If you're buying a new boat, don't rush into a decision to purchase a service contract at closing, as many independent service contract providers give up to a nine-month or one-year window to purchase an

Swimming

Bethlehem breaks records

Bethlehem's 2011-12 swimming season has featured several swimmers breaking school records, and in some cases individuals bettering their old records in certain events.

Junior Hannah Spaulding twice set the Banshees' record in the 200 individual medley, first breaking it in November at the Woodford/Danville meet and then snapping it again at the Woodford Invitational in December with a 2:29.38.

In addition, Spaulding broke her own school record in the 100 butterfly with a 1:10.26 time in January at the Woodford/Jessamine meet.

Bethlehem also has had some record-breakers on the boys' side of things.

Junior Carson Blevins wrote his name on the record books in three different events, posting a 24.68 time in the 50 freestyle and a 55.57 in the 100 freestyle. He also broke his own school record in the 100 backstroke with a 1:07.50 time.

Junior Jacob Dennerlein added his name to the Eagle record book with school-best times of 2:06.22 in the 200 freestyle and 1:00.99 in the 100 butterfly.

Nelson in Brown Bear Sprints

Nelson County's boys placed fifth and the Cardinal girls were ninth in Saturday's Brown Bear Sprints in Louisville.

Top results of the day included Will Hutchins, who placed second overall in the 50 meter breaststroke out of 135 swimmers, and also was third in the 100 meter freestyle.

Tyler Veech also enjoyed a strong meet, posting an 11th-place result in the 50 meter butterfly and 14th in the 50 freestyle. Veech and Hutchins also teamed with Daniel Spalding and Jake Mattingly to place fourth in the 200 meter freestyle relay out of 36 squads.

The Nelson girls' top results were in the 200 meter freestyle, where they placed 16th.

extended warranty for new boats. Waiting to purchase until you're near the end of this window extends the life of the service contract in your favor. This is usually not an option with a used boat purchase.

Naked truth No. 7: The check was in the mail — Twenty-five percent of all service contract complaints to BoatUS involve dealers "forgetting" to send the premium to the contract's provider, which doesn't come to light until the boater needs the coverage.

Flaget Memorial Hospital to host health fair

Are you on the path to a healthy life? There's no time like January, after the excesses of the holidays, to get you refocused on your health. One way to do that is to attend the Flaget Community Health Fair — 9 a.m.-noon Saturday, Jan. 28 at the Civic Center. This free fair will feature doctors discussing important health topics, educational materials that you can study and take home, vendors, refreshments, door prizes and more. Bring your loved ones and join us for an educational, fun-filled morning.

ing for door prizes and enjoying a healthy, light breakfast. Then bone up on health information by listening to the following talks: Flaget Emergency Physician Charles Sowder, M.D., will discuss cardiac disease in Nelson County, along with prevention and survival; Mark Abramovich, M.D., will cover the role of the hospitalist; OB/GYN Amy Farrell, M.D., will discuss women's health as they age; and Bariatric and General Surgeon Rob Farrell, M.D., will talk about bariatric (weight loss) and general surgery topics.

There will also be free screenings available, such as blood sugar screenings, blood pressure screenings, and body mass index screenings.

Join us for the healthy living event that will help you start the year off right. There will definitely be something here to please and inform every member of the family.

Trim Down, Bardstown

The annual weight-loss drive will start soon in two locations. It will start Monday, Jan. 30 at the Bardstown Bariatric & General Surgery office in the medical office building next to Flaget Memorial Hospital, 8:30 through noon Mondays through Fridays ending Friday, March 23.

Or you can weigh in at the Hospice of Nelson County office, 111 N. Third St., beginning Wednesday, Feb. 1. Weigh-ins will continue there on Wednesdays only from noon to 6 p.m., ending March 21. The entrance is to the rear of the building.

A $5 entry fee covers the entire nine-week program. All fees will be collected in a prize kitty that will be split between the winners — those who meet their goal of losing 7 percent of their starting weight by the end of the drive.

Each week tips for weight management and exercise will be handed out, along with free coupons to the area's gyms. Extreme dieting measures are not recommended. Instead, healthy eating, the buddy system, and exercising will be stressed as ways to work off the extra pounds. So will patience. It took you a long time to develop the couch potato habits you have now, so give yourself some slack. Change takes time.

Flaget Memorial honors Clark with DAISY Award

Since May of 2009, Flaget Memorial Hospital has been honoring its finest nurses with the DAISY Award. The award is part of the DAISY foundation's national program to recognize the super-human efforts nurses perform for their patients every day.

The latest award winner is Jill Clark, R.N., of Flaget's Emergency Department. Clark was chosen based on her dedication to her patients, to the core values of the hospital, and for her helpfulness to fellow staff members, according to Emergency Department Director Laura LaRue, R.N., M.S.N., M.B.A.

"Jill is extremely deserving of the DAISY Award," LaRue said. "She is involved in process improvement teams, where she strives to make positive changes to improve patient care. She is an excellent clinician and a great leader. She donates her time at the community clinic on a routine basis. She deserves this award and so much more."

Emergency Room Physician Charles Sowder, M.D., couldn't agree more.

"Jill is technically excellent, personally compassionate, and always sympathetic to individual situations and life issues," he said. "She is a community volunteer with a heart for our healing ministry. She goes the extra step at personal cost. She is exemplary!"

For Emergency Department Nurse Shenenne Spalding, R.N., Clark has been a mentor.

"I have been working at Flaget for one year now, and Jill has always gone above and beyond the call of duty," Spalding said. "She has never failed to answer any questions that I may have. She is always kind and caring. She is an amazing nurse."

Flaget President Sue Downs, R.N., M.S.N., C.E.N.P., is proud that Flaget is among the hospitals participating in the DAISY Award program, she said.

"Nurses are unsung heroes," Downs said. "It's important that our nurses know their work is highly valued. The DAISY Foundation provides a way for us to demonstrate our gratitude for their remarkable clinical skill and compassionate care. Jill is recognized as an outstanding role model in our nursing community."

Every three months, a nurse is selected by Flaget's nursing administration to receive the DAISY award, Downs said. The honoree receives a certificate of commendation, a DAISY Award pin, and a sculpture hand-carved by the Shona Tribe in Africa titled "A Healer's Touch."

Daisy Foundation

The not-for-profit DAISY Foundation, based in California, was established in 2000 by family members of J. Patrick Barnes, who died at age 33 as a result of an autoimmune disease. The nursing care that Barnes received while he was ill inspired his family to create the DAISY award. There are now 245 hospitals in the U.S. committed to honoring their nurses with this award. The award is one initiative of the DAISY Foundation, which has an overall goal of helping fight diseases of the immune system. To date, the foundation has honored more than 2,000 nurses.

United Way donation

The first United Way of Nelson County small business contribution for the year came from Medica Pharmacy for $2,000. Pictured are Allyson Claywell Schwartz and Paralee Stansbury, Secretary of the United Way of Nelson County Board of Directors. United Way is starting to reach out to many small businesses to help cover any shortfall this year.

College-bound senior doesn't measure up in parents' eyes

DEAR ABBY: I'm 18 years old. I play two competitive sports, maintain a 4.0 GPA, have good friends and will be attending the college of my dreams. Yet for some reason I cannot get along with my parents.

It seems like I can't live up to their standards. We get into huge fights every day over insignificant things. My parents continually tell me they don't think I will handle college very well because I "can't get along with people." But their lack of faith just frustrates me and we get into more fights.

In reality, the only people I don't get along with are my parents. This is unsettling to me because next fall I will be across the country from them and I feel they will be happy that I'm gone. I'm at a loss as to what to do to control my temper and fix my relationship with my parents before I leave. Your advice would be appreciated.

CLIMBING THE WALLS IN CLEVELAND
DEAR CLIMBING THE WALLS: It's possible that your parents may be suffering from separation anxiety. You, their child, are about to leave the nest, and they may be dealing with conflicting feelings of pride in your accomplishments and sadness that you are about to fly from the nest. It may not be a lack of faith in you. Also, they may be having second thoughts about how they can afford the tuition and other college expenses beyond possible financial aid.

Whatever their reasons are, you need some tools to help you stay calm and not fly off the handle when your buttons are pushed — regardless of who is pressing them. In my booklet, "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It," I offer suggestions that will help you gain control of your emotions so that you will lose your temper less often. It can be ordered by sending your name and mailing address, plus a check or money order for $7 (U.S. funds), to Dear Abby — Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447.

Shipping and handling are included in the price. Anger is a normal emotion. There are probably no human beings who don't experience anger at one time or another. However, it's important that you learn some techniques to handle your emotional reactions more constructively than you have been. Not only will these techniques help you with your parents now, but also they will help you when you're away at college adjusting to new people and new situations.

Remember, the average person may become irritated, angry or frustrated several times a day. The key is to deal with these emotions effectively. Talk with your parents about your feelings and explore what's going on. By focusing on what is triggering your negative emotions instead of reacting with an outburst, you can not only defuse your anger but also retain your dignity, and possibly achieve a more informed understanding of how your parents may really feel. I hope that the outcome will be a rapprochement with your parents.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ What you might be thinking may not be apparent. In fact, you are working on a very different, intuitive level. If you have a strong sense financially, follow through, as long as the risk is not too great. Share an inspired idea. Tonight: Relax to some good music.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ You zero in on what is happening with a friend. Be gracious. Let this person tell you what is going on, though he or she might not be exactly sure. A friend who can be flighty taps into your energy. Tonight: Where the action is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ What you might have thought of as rumor or hearsay might not be. The end results will be excellent. Many of your interactions transform within a key relationship. Still, you need to detach from this person's need to control. Tonight: Rest.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ You might want to revamp your plans. The problem lies in the fact that once your day becomes fluid, it might never stabilize. Ask yourself if that is OK. Several demanding people seek you out. Tonight: Break past your thoughts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ Your fiery demeanor seems a bit off. You feel as if you must understand what is happening behind the scenes, especially with a key player. Others do not know what to make of you when you are like this. Tonight: All smiles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Others view you as excitable and full of energy. Your ability to detach will emerge, allowing you to make a perfect choice. You know what works. Answer to another person clearly. Your ability to understand allows you to be gracious when few can. Tonight: Taking in new vistas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Put 100 percent into whatever you want. You will see the end results, which will make you smile. You also will feel much better about yourself. A partner comes up with a wonderful investment. Push comes to shove with a personal matter. Tonight: Togetherness works.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ Your words make waves. You might want to decide if that is the end result you desire. Do not try to minimize the situation. Rather, claim responsibility and the ability to change it. Know what it is you want. Tonight: Ever playful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Pressure builds, and you see life from a different perspective. Getting your view in line with reality needs to occur in order to experience success. Opportunities increase under those circumstances. Be willing to reorganize from a different perspective. Tonight: Happiest at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ Your self-expression and ability to move forward depend on whether you can open up to a new perspective. Remain sure of yourself, and honor your core integrity. You cannot go wrong. Creativity surges to an unprecedented level if you relax. Tonight: Order in.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ What you perceive as a good idea could become one. Test it a little more. Be more sensitive to your personal needs, and you will gain. Not everything is work- or business-related. Tonight: Order pizza.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ You flow through problems with optimism, drawing even more positive responses. A meeting that you thought would go a certain way becomes a little more difficult. Tonight: Meet a friend; the activity is your call.

Look for the JANUARY KENTUCKY HOMES MAGAZINE
on newsstands now and online @ kystandard.com

That's how many Kentucky adults read a daily, Sunday or weekly newspaper during an average week.

That's more than 5 out of 6 people.

And truth be told, we like to think that 6th person might be listening while one of the other five reads out loud.
